

ABSTRACT

A process for blending polymers that comprises the step of melt blending the polymers while they are in a state of molecular disentanglement. Also, products made from such a process.